The NJSBA Cooperative Pricing System eliminates the need for your district to undergo the competitive bidding process.

We've done the work for you so that your schools — and taxpayers — can benefit from low rates.

The program, created with support from the New Jersey Department of Education, and developed in cooperation with the N.J. Department of Community Affairs (DCA), enables school districts and member charter schools to purchase discounted school technology and services, and energy services.

The New Jersey Legislature is made up of two Houses, the General Assembly and the Senate. There are two General Assembly representatives and one Senator from each of the 40 legislative districts in the state.

Each House of the Legislature elects a leader — the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the General Assembly. Both leaders set committee meeting and voting session schedules, appoint committee chairs and members, refer bills to committee, post bills for floor votes and preside over the routine business of their respective Houses.

The New Jersey Legislature generally meets on Mondays and Thursdays. On a committee day, there will usually be meetings in the morning and afternoon. Committees are divided into groups and the groups are usually assigned a day and time to meet. On voting session days, members of each party meet in caucus to discuss the bills to be voted upon with the voting session following. Both voting sessions and committee meetings are open to the general public. Floor sessions can be viewed in the public galleries located on the second floor of the State House on West State Street in Trenton. Committee meetings are held in the State House Annex, adjacent to the State House.

Committees are established to deal with particular issue areas. Issues that NJSBA deals with most frequently are often heard in the Education, Budget or Appropriations committees of each respective House, although a bill can be referred to any committee. If a bill is not passed during a two-year legislative session, it has to be reintroduced in the new session before it can be considered again.

A legislative session lasts two years and begins the second Tuesday in January of each even-numbered year. Any legislation introduced during a legislative session can be considered in committee and voted upon if brought before the full House.

COMMUNICATING WITH YOUR LEGISLATORS

The most effective means of communication is to email, call or write a letter to inform your Assembly representatives or Senator where you stand on an issue.

Email If you're pressed for time, email is probably the most effective way to get in touch. It also allows for correspondence record-keeping.

Phone Call Most legislators track issue interest by phone-call numbers. If you know your legislator/aide, a call can advise them you are engaged.

Snail Mail A well-written letter stands out because it's rare. It also makes a highly effective thank-you.

Personal Meeting NJSBA's Governmental Relations staff will be happy to provide guidance to help you coordinate a meeting. Once you've met with your legislator and established a relationship, all other contact methods become more effective.

More tips on reaching out to legislators:

- If a bill is in committee, send your correspondence to the committee chair and to all committee members. Always copy the sponsor of the bill.
- If the bill has passed both Houses of the Legislature and is awaiting action by the Governor, send correspondence directly to the Governor.
- Always send a copy of your correspondence to your legislators and NJSBA's Governmental Relations Department. Together, we are a forceful advocacy team.
- Regardless of the outcome, thank your legislators when they have supported your position on an issue.
- Use the same strategy with your Congressman and U.S. Senator if it is a federal matter. Please note, however, that all mail sent to Washington D.C. undergoes security screening that results in delayed delivery. If you have time-sensitive materials to send, e-mail or fax may be more expeditious.

Remember to be courteous and brief in communicating with your legislators. Be well-informed and express your appreciation for their time and attention. Try to be positive/informative, not defensive/hostile. Even if you disagree, you may need their support another time.
